

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

CHAPTER I.

INTRODUCTORY.

THE hand of Time has dealt somewhat hardly with the northern town of Lancaster. In few of its streets can the stranger see any evidence of an existence earlier than the eighteenth, or, in rare instances, of the seventeenth century. But on the hill above the town stands a group of buildings which for centuries past have looked down upon “The stony shallow Lune,

Which to old Lancaster its name doth lend.”

Prominent in this group is the church of Saint Mary, and as we pause on the threshold of its history there rise before us some of the scenes enacted upon the hill on which it stands.

On every side extends a wide and varied panorama. To the south lies the great plain of the Fylde. Eastward rise the fells of Wyresdale, dividing the counties of Lancaster and York. To the north-east the silver line of the Lune leads the eye towards the bold front of Ingleborough, standing out against the sky. Northward, the blue waters of Morecambe Bay gleam in the sunshine, and beyond are the eternal hills.

Here, on the hill where Lancaster Church now stands, rather more than eighteen hundred years ago, stood Agricola. He had been appointed legate of Britain by Vespasian in A.D. 78, and in the campaign of his second year in Britain he reached Lancaster. From the brow of the hill Agricola looked across the sands of Morecambe Bay<sup>1</sup> and directed the march of the Roman legions towards the north.

Here, too, a thousand years later, came the Norman Baron, Roger of Poitou. Recognizing the military importance of the site, he commenced the erection of the great Keep, which still attests how well the builders wrought in those early days. Almost beneath the shadow of that Keep stood the church which Roger of Poitou gave, with various chapels and large possessions, to God and Saint Martin of Seez.

A century later King John, when Earl of Moreton, was at Lancaster, and granted those charters to his Burgesses of Lancaster which for many centuries were of so great importance to the county town.

Two hundred years passed, and the castle was the home of northern chivalry. Within its walls John of Gaunt held his Court with a state and ceremony rivalling that of the King, and many an edict issued from its gates fraught with grave consequence to the State.

The tide of prosperity had, however, rolled to its flood, and in the days of Henry V., whose massive gateway overlooks the town, came the ebb. By the time the Wars of the Roses were over the castle had become a ruin, and we hear nothing of the church until the time when the Priory of Lancaster shared the fate of the other ecclesiastical houses in England.

The middle of the seventeenth century let loose on Lancaster the dogs of war. Time after time was the town besieged, and the inhabitants found refuge in the church of Saint Mary. One figure alone stands out clearly amidst the struggle round Lancaster — that of James, seventh Earl of Derby. Through evil report and good report he remained staunch in his loyalty to Charles I., sacrificing his peaceful home, his vast estates, and, finally, his life, in the struggle to support the cause of his King.

Twice more—nearly a century later—the church of Lancaster saw a hostile army round its walls. In “the Fifteen” the Lancastrians crowded to the church to show their sympathy with what they thought might be the winning side. Thirty years later the townspeople were more careful in supporting a falling cause, and the Young Chevalier as he paced the churchyard had good reason to reflect upon the scant fulfilment of promises of assistance lavishly given when he was far distant.

With the sadness and the romance of “the Forty-five” the sound of war left Lancaster.

But there still remains that narrow path in the churchyard trodden by so many heroes in ages past. Round that path lie the ashes of the forefathers of the Lancastrians of to-day. Strange would be the history we should hear from those tongues long silent could they speak to us of the scenes in which they took part in the days gone by.

My task, however, is limited to the search amongst the dry bones of history for such facts as will give the main outlines of the story of Lancaster Church. To the reader must be left the task of filling in those outlines with the bright or sombre colouring necessary to complete the picture of the church which for so many centuries has looked down on Lancaster.

CHAPTER II.

THE ANCIENT CHURCH.

THE history of the ancient church of Lancaster is scanty in the extreme.

Numerous relics of the Roman occupation have been found in Lancaster, but none of them make any allusion to Christianity. The departure of the Romans was followed by the invasion of the country by the English, who drove the Britons to the mountainous districts. There for some time the Britons kept their enemies at bay, and the British kingdom of Strathclyde, which extended along the coast from the Clyde to the Dee, included Lancaster. Gradually the eastern portion of Strathclyde became absorbed in the kingdom of Northumbria, and in 685 Ecgfrith, King of Northumbria, granted to St. Cuthbert a district not far north of Lancaster — “terram quæ vocatur Cartmel et omnes Britannos cum eo.”<sup>1</sup> After the death of Ecgfrith his kingdom lapsed into anarchy; wars ensued between rival Princes, invasion followed invasion, and eventually Strathclyde submitted to English rule. The constant warfare which prevailed has, therefore, left but few relics at Lancaster of this early period.

At Heysham, some three miles south-west, and at Halton, about the same distance to the east of Lancaster, remarkable examples of pre-Norman carved stones are still preserved. Four smaller stones bearing pre-Norman work are inserted in the north wall of the present Church at Lancaster. But the most important relic of this period found at Lancaster is the Runic Cross now preserved in the British Museum. It was discovered in 1807 in digging a grave in the churchyard, but the Vicar of that day, instead of placing it in the church, allowed it to rest against the wall outside the gates of the vicarage. Thence it disappeared, and some years later turned up in a museum at Kendal. In 1835 this museum was dispersed, and the cross came into the possession of Dr. Edward Holme of Manchester, in whose study it was found after his death in 1837. Then it was transferred to the Natural History Society's Museum in Manchester, from whence it passed, in 1868, to the British Museum.

The cross is complete with the exception of the right arm. The height of the stone is three feet ; its breadth fifteen and a half inches. In the centre is an inscription in Anglian Runes, of which various readings have been given.<sup>1</sup> The reading generally accepted is that suggested by the late John Mitchell Kemble, as slightly varied by Professor Stephens :—

GI-BIDÆD FO
CUDBÆRE(HTING)

Bid (pray ye) for Cunibalth Cuthbærechting (Cuthbert's son).<sup>2</sup>

The cross is one of the few Christian monuments in Great Britain bearing inscriptions in Anglian Runes, and its erection is ascribed to the seventh century.

In 1811 a quantity of coins, of the time of Cnut, were found in the churchyard. The coins, several hundred in number, were enclosed in a silver urn, but both urn and coins have long disappeared. Six of the coins were formerly in the possession of Mr. Todhunter of Kendal, and the legends upon them were thus described :—

With these, the relics of the pre-Norman period conclude.

The disturbed state of the country prior to the Norman Conquest seems to have reduced Lancaster to such an extent that at the time of the Domesday Survey the town appears to have been a dependency of the manor of Halton. The record runs:—

M[anor]. In Haltun h' buit Comes Tosti vi car. t're ad g'ld.

Earl Tosti, who is thus described as having held the manor of Halton, of which Lancaster formed part, fell at the battle of Stamford Bridge, on the 25th September, 1066. Harold, the victor in the fight, was himself vanquished at Hastings nineteen days later, and the manor of Halton fell into the hands of William the Conqueror. By him it was granted to Roger of Poitou.

Roger erected the massive Keep of Lancaster Castle, and in the year 1094 he executed the deed which became the great charter of the Priory of Lancaster.

With this charter commences the written history of the church of Lancaster.

THE CHARTULARY OF THE PRIORY OF LANCASTER.

THE chartulary of the Priory of Lancaster is preserved in the British Museum. It is a manuscript of eighty-two pages. The leaves—of vellum—are ten and three-quarter inches in height by seven and a half inches in width. The writing is the ordinary English writing of the latter part of the first half of the fifteenth century, and the initial letters are coloured blue with, except on the first page, no attempt at ornament. The volume commences with the grant from Roger of Poitou, and comprises a large number of charters and grants relating to the possessions of the Priory, records of agreements with other ecclesiastical houses, and a number of Papal Bulls.

In the name and honour of the holy and undivided Trinity. Let it be known to all, as well present as to come, that Roger, Earl of Poitou, for the welfare of his soul, and for the welfare also [of the souls] of Roger [Earl of] Shrewsbury his father, and his mother Mabel, the Countess, also for his brothers and for all his friends, gave to God and St. Martin the church of St. Mary of Lancaster, with all things pertaining to it, and part of the land of that vill, from the old wall<sup>1</sup> as far as the orchard of Godfrey, and as far as Prestgate; and near to Lancaster two mansions, Aldcliffe and Newton,<sup>2</sup> and whatsoever pertains to them; also the grove as far as Freybrook, with the dignity and customs which he had; and Amfridus de Montgomery, and whatsoever he holds of the abovesaid Earl; and the church of Heysham, with a third part of the land of all the vill, and the church of Cotegrave, and the church of Coppull, and the church of Wikelay, and the church of Croston, and a moiety of the church of Eccleston, and the church of Childwall, and the church of Preston, with the tithe of the lordship and of the fishery, and two bovates of land, and all the tithes of the whole parish, and the church of Kirkham, and the church of Melling, and the church of Bolton, with the tithe of the lordship, and a moiety of one carucate of land, and with all other tithes. He gave also in Amounderness, Poulton, and whatsoever pertains to it, and the church with a carucate of land, and with all other the appurtenances. Moreover, he gave the tithe of venison and of the pannage of all his groves, and the tithe of his fishery. He granted also the third draught of the seine of St. Mary. Moreover, he gave the tithes of fowls, calves, lambs, goats, and hogs, and of corn, cheese, and butter, at Estaneberi, at Salford and at Derby, and at Hale, and Everton, and Walton, and Crosby, and Meols, and Croston, and Preston, and Ribby, and Singleton, and Precsall, and Middleton, Overton, and Skerton, and Bare, and Stapleton-terne, and Slyne. All these he gave to the honour of God and St. Mary for the sustenance of the monks who should celebrate the service to God and St.

<sup>1</sup> The only remaining portion of what may have been the old wall of the town consists of a fragment of masonry on the west side of Bridge Lane. It is sometimes called the wery wall, and the suggestion has been made that "the Normans, who would pronounce the w as v, may have supposed wery to be veteri."—Baines' Lancashire (1870 edition), p. 565, note.

<sup>2</sup> Aldcliffe Hall, situate on the south side of the River Lune, occupies the site of the former mansion. Of the latter mansion—Newton—situate on the north-east of Lancaster, no trace remains.

Mary in the same monastery, so liberally that neither the monks nor their men should at any time perform any secular services to him or his successors, and none of his [successors] may have power over these things, nor receive anything, nor impose any customs, because he granted all the dignities and customs which he had in his land to hold to the monastery of St. Mary of Lancaster. He granted also if anyone shall wish to ask the prayers and benefit of the monastery of Lancaster, and shall give part of his land to it, to a half, the Earl grants it most willingly. And after the said Earl granted, Godfrey the Sheriff, hearing these things, gave the tithes of Bispham, and whatsoever he had in Lancaster, houses and orchard; and Ralph Gernet [gave] three men in Suffolk. Charter concerning churches with many other liberties in the county of Lancaster granted to the Abbot of Sees.

John, Earl of Moreton, to all his men and friends, both French and English, greeting. Let it be known to you all that I have granted, and by this my charter confirmed, to God and St. Martin of Sees the church of St. Mary of Lancaster, with all things pertaining to it, and part of the land of that vill, from the old wall as far as the orchard of Godfrey, and as far as Prestegate, and near Lancaster the two mansions, Aldcliffe and Newton, and whatsoever pertains to them, and Newton throughout its boundaries as perambulated [by] me, namely, from that brook which flows between my vill of Lancaster<sup>1</sup> and St. Leonard's hospital for Lepers,<sup>2</sup> and which falls into the Lune, and as far as

<sup>2</sup> The Hospital of St. Leonard was founded by King John when Earl of Moreton, and was granted by Henry, Duke of Lancaster, on the 1st April, 1357, to the Priory of Seton in Cumberland. The possessions of the Priory of Seton were valued at £12 12s. 0½d. at the Dissolution. The Hospital of St. Leonard stood outside the gate of St. Leonard, and human remains are found on its site. The name is preserved in the name of the street which led from it into the town—St. Leonard's Gate—and its connection with the Priory of Seton is perpetuated by the names of the fields on its north-east side known as the Nuns' Fields.

Moreover, the tithe of venison and pannage, both of all my fallow groves and lands, and the tithe of the fishery. Also the third draft of the seine of St. Mary. *Charter of Warin de Waleton of quitclaim of the patronage of

To all the sons of the holy mother church to whom this present writing shall come, Warin de Walton greeting eternal in the Lord. Let all of you know that I, by inspection of the confirmations of the Kings of England, and of the charters of Lord Roger of Poitou, founder of the church of the blessed Mary of Lancaster, and of the charters and confirmations of Hugh, Geoffrey, and Alexander of pious memory, Bishops of Coventry, have determined that the right of patronage of the church of Eccleston in Leylandshire, with its appurtenances, of right pertains to the Abbot and Convent of Sees, and to the church of the blessed Mary of Lancaster, and to the monks there serving God and the blessed Mary. Led, therefore, by this reason, I have quitclaimed for the welfare of my soul, and [of the souls] of my ancestors and my successors, the whole right and claim which I had or could have in the advowson of the said church of Eccles-ton to the said Abbot and Convent of Sees, and to the aforesaid monks of Lancaster, from me and all my heirs for ever ; so that neither I nor any of my heirs can ever demand any right or claim in the advowson abovesaid, renouncing for ever things obtained and to be obtained, against the said Abbot and Convent concerning the advowson of the said church for me and all my heirs. And I, Warin and my heirs for ever will faithfully warrant the abovesaid advowson to the said Abbot and Convent and monks according to our power against all men as much as pertains to us. To all the sons of holy mother church to whom this present writing shall come, John de la Mare, knight, Lord of Croston, greeting in the Lord. Let all of you know that I, from an inspection of the confirmations of the Kings of England, and of the charters of Roger, Earl of Poitou, founder of the church of the blessed Mary of Lancaster, and also of the charters and confirmations of Hugh and Geoffrey, of pious memory, bishops of Coventry, have determined that the right of the patronage of the church of Croston and of a moiety of the chapel of Eccleston, with its appurtenances, of right belongs to the Abbot and Convent of Sees, and to the church of the blessed Mary of Lancaster, and to the monks serving God there. Led, therefore, by this reason, I have quitclaimed, for the welfare of my soul and [of the

The Assize came to recognize what patron in the time of the peace presented the last parson, who is dead, to the church of Eccleston, which is vacant, etc., and the advowson of which the Prior of Lancaster asserts to belong to him, and of which advowson Benedict Gernet and Edelina Duce deforced him, and whereof he says that a certain Geoffrey, predecessor of the said Prior, in the time of peace and in the time of the lord the King that now is, presented one John de Attilgre, his clerk, to the aforesaid church, who at his presentation was admitted and instituted, and who died last parson in the same; and Benedict and Edelina did not come, and they had a day by their essoins to this day. Therefore, the assize is taken against them by default. And therefore, the Jury say upon their oath that the aforesaid Geoffrey last presented the aforesaid John to the aforesaid church, who at his presentation was admitted and instituted, and who died last parson in the same. Therefore, it is considered that the aforesaid prior should recover his presentation to the aforesaid church, and Benedict and Edelina are in mercy; and the aforesaid prior has a writ to the Bishop of Coventry and Lichfield that he admit his own parson at his presentation to the aforesaid church, etc. This assize was taken before the Justices in Banco at Westminster, Martin de Litlebury then being Justice there, in fifteen days from the day of Holy Trinity, in the fifty-second year of the reign of King Henry, son of King John [1268].

for the land of Ellel within the bounds.*

To all the sons of holy mother church to whom this present writing shall come, Grimbald of Ellel, son of Hebert, greeting in the Lord. Know all of you that I and my heirs are held to render to God and the Blessed Mary, and to the Prior of Lancaster, and the monks serving God there, two shillings by the year—to wit, at the feast of Michaelmas—for that land within the bounds of Ellel, which Grimbald, the elder—to wit, my grandfather—gave in pure and perpetual alms to God and the Blessed Mary, and to the aforesaid prior and monks. And lest I or my heirs may resist this annual payment of two shillings for ever, we have set our seal to this present writing. Witnesses—William de Vernun, sheriff of Lancaster, Roger Gernet, Geoffrey the Bowman, Gilbert de Croft, Walter son of Swein, Orm of Kellet, Roger the clerk (clericus), constable of Lancaster, and many others.

*Charter concerning two shillings from Robert of Holland and

To all the faithful of Christ who shall see or hear this writing, Roger [? Robert], son of Adam of Holland, and Grimbald, son of the said Robert, Roger of Slyne, and Juliana, wife of the said Roger, everlasting greeting in the Lord. Know, all of you, that wherças contention arose between us on the one part, and brother

John, called le Ray, prior of Lancaster, on the other part, because the said Prior demanded from us, by a writ of the Lord the King, all that land with its appurtenances lying within the bounds of Ellel which Grimbald of Ellel, the elder, gave, with his body, to the church of the Blessed Mary of Lancaster. At length, by an amicable arrangement, we have agreed in this manner, namely, that we, the aforesaid Robert, Grimbald, Roger and Juliana, and our heirs, or those holding that land, are bound to render each year for ever two shillings sterling at the feast of St. Michael annually, to the aforesaid Prior and his successors, for the aforesaid land with its appurtenances. And if it happen that we or our heirs, or those holding that land, should at any term be lacking in the payment, then it shall be lawful for the said Prior and his successors, or their attorney, to distrain and to make their distraint on the whole of the said land with its appurtenances, or in whatsoever part of that land they may choose at their pleasure, to whose hands soever that land shall have come, without contradiction of any one until satisfaction shall be fully made to the Prior and his successors or their attorney, for all arrears. And we, the aforesaid Robert, Grimbald, Roger and Juliana, and our heirs will warrant the aforesaid annual two shillings to the said Prior and his successors, against all men and women for ever. In testimony whereof, we, for us and our heirs, have set our seals to this present writing. Witnesses—Thomas of Bolton, Roger de Burgh, Gervase of Stodday, William of Grisehead, John of Ashton, and others.

Composition between us and the Abbot of Leicester.

In the year of grace, 1259, on the Tuesday next after the Feast of St. Mathias the Apostle. Whereas controversy had arisen between the Lord Henry, Abbot of Leicester, on the one part, and the Lord Garnerius, Prior of Lancaster, on the other part, concerning the tithes of a certain assart,<sup>1</sup> and concerning certain small tithes of some men living on the "Moshenesse," the said controversy has been settled in this manner. That is to say, that the said Prior for himself has granted and quitclaimed for ever <sup>1</sup> Assart. "Verely, when that the pleasant woods of the forest or thick bushie places meet for the secret feeding of the wilde beasts be cut downe and plucked up by the rootes, and the same ground made a plaine and turned into arable land, this by the lawe of the forest is properly said to be an assart of the forest or land assarted." Coucher Book of Whalley Abbey (Chet. Soc. vol. xx.), p. 1267.

to the Abbot and Convent of Leicester, a moiety of the greater tithes of the said assart, made or to be made, within these limits—beginning at the cross which is situate by the high way that goes from Lancaster to Cockerham, and so going down through the valley westwards to Musham, and so following the Moshenese southwards to Fulslogh, and so along Fulslogh to the ditch which is below the assart of Raymer, and so along that ditch eastwards as far as Flacfeld, and so ascending the middle of the valley to the aforesaid cross. And the other moiety the said Abbot of Leicester granted to the said Prior and his successors, and to his church of Lancaster for ever, in such a manner, namely, that every year before the Feast of St. Peter ad Vincula, the said Abbot, or his proctor dwelling at Cockerham, shall choose three trustworthy men, and the said Prior and his successors three other trustworthy men, which six jurors shall determine the value of the half of the said tithes ; and every year on the day of St. Michael at the fairs of Lancaster, the said Abbot or his proctor shall pay the price of the said half to the said Prior and his successors under the penalty of half a mark. And the said Prior of Lancaster granted on his part, all the small tithes and all other offerings of the men living within the said bounds, to the said Abbot and Convent for ever. For this grant and quitclaim the said Abbot or his proctor shall pay to the said Prior and church of Lancaster annually, at the Feast of St. Michael, at the fairs of Lancaster, a pound of incense. And if it happen that the Lord of Thurnham for the time being shall have stalls for cows or sheep or any kind of store within the said bounds, the said Prior and church of Lancaster shall receive fully half the tithes coming therefrom. And the said Abbot of Leicester has promised on his honour that he will faithfully procure the consent and seal of his Convent to a confirmation of this present writing before the next Feast of St. Peter ad Vincula ; and the said Prior likewise on his own part, on his honour, has promised that he will faithfully procure the consent and seal of the Abbey and Convent of Sees to a confirmation of this present writing before the said Feast of St. Peter; and for the greater security of this matter, this writing is made in the form of a chirograph, and is mutually signed with the seal of both parties. Witnesses—Sir Robert de Lathom, sheriff of Lancaster; Sir William de Furness, knight; Sir John de Lee, knight; Thomas of Capernwray, Master William of Kirkham, Sir Philip, parson of Croston, Gervase his brother, Richard Pincerna, Adam of Heaton, and others.

Composition between us and the Abbot of Cockersand concerning the tithes of Lancaster, Poulton, and Bispham.

To all the faithful of Christ to whom this present writing shall come, we, the sub-Dean of Lincoln, the Prior and sub-Prior of St. Katherine of Lincoln, desire to bring to the notice of you all the mandate of our lord Pope Innocent the Third, in these words: Innocent, bishop, servant of servants, to his beloved sons the sub-Dean, the Prior and sub-Prior of Lincoln, greeting, and apostolic benediction. On behalf of the Abbot of St. Martin of Sees we have received a complaint that the Abbot and Canons of Cockersand, of the Præmonstratensian order, of the diocese of York, have injured the same in the matter of tithes and other things. Wherefore, at your discretion, we command, by our apostolic mandate, that having convened the parties and heard them thereon, you shall determine what is just, causing what you shall decree to be firmly observed by an ecclesiastical censure. And do you compel those witnesses who may be called, if through favour, hatred, or fear they shall be influenced, to bear testimony to the truth by the same censure. And if you can not all be present when these matters require, let two of you nevertheless pursue them. Dated at the Lateran, the 13th Kalends of June, in the thirteenth year of our Pontificate. Therefore, by the authority of this mandate, the parties being before us, and certain things being put forward on either side, after also some disputes, the contention between them was settled by this amicable composition, thus: That the Abbot and Convent of Sees should receive two parts of the tithes of corn in the parish of Lancaster, of Poulton, and Bispham, about which the controversy between them by apostolic authority turned before us, the third part remaining in the hands of the Abbot and Convent of Cockersand; nor shall the Abbot and Convent of Cockersand, or anyone on their behalf, unduly enter the aforesaid parishes of the Abbot and Convent of Sees to collect the spiritualities, or receive the temporalities, without licence and consent of the Abbot and Convent of Sees. But if the said Abbot and Convent of Cockersand, after this composition made between the Abbot and Convent of Sees, shall by the gift of any, or by any right title acquire lands or possessions within the bounds of the aforesaid Abbot and Convent of Sees, they shall pay to the said Abbot and Convent of Sees, by parochial law, the tithes due by common law. Yet know that by the consent of both parties we have reserved to ourselves the power of compelling the parties to observe this composition, if in any way they shall wish to contravene it. This composition was made in the year after the incarnation of our Lord 1216. In testimony whereof we have strengthened this present writing by the setting to of our seals. Besides this, be it known that the Abbot and Convent of Cockersand have renounced before us the things bestowed or to be bestowed respecting the same cause.

To all men who shall see or hear these letters: brother Hereward, called Abbot of Cockersand, and the lowly Convent of the same place, eternal greeting in the Lord. Know all of you that we of our spontaneous and free will are held accountable to pay to the Prior of Lancaster or his monks twenty shillings by way of penalty if within the parishes belonging to the said church of Lancaster we do anything contrary to the composition made at Lincoln before the delegated judges, to wit: the sub-Dean of the greater church of Lincoln, the Prior and sub-Prior of the hospital of St. Katherine; and that the payment of this penalty, and the observance of the aforesaid composition, may be firmly kept in times to come, we have strengthened this writing by the protection of the seals of both parties. Chirograph of the Abbot and Convent of Cockersand, whereby they may not admit to ecclesiastical sacraments at Lancaster without licence of the Prior.

Know all the faithful, that, whereas between the Prior of Lancaster acting in the name of his Abbot and Convent of Sees of the one part, and the Abbot and Convent of Cockersand of the other part, before the appointed judges at Lincoln, a question has been raised on the part of the Prior that the same Abbot and Convent, contrary to the agreement formerly entered into between them, had admitted certain parishioners of the said Abbot and Convent of Sees to the rights of sepulture in their monastery, and some who served the Abbot and Convent of Cockersand to the ecclesiastical sacraments, and from them received oblations and personal tithes, excusing themselves in these matters by apostolic privileges. At length the parties in the premises have submitted themselves to the will of the lord archdeacon of Richmond, that he may determine and amicably settle the matters in question between them. Who, having inspected the composition made between them, and the privileges aforesaid, has ordained that the penalties incurred by the Abbot and Convent of Cockersand under this composition, which is in no way weakened by the privileges, and should remain in full force, be remitted this time, although they have contravened the said composition; and that from henceforth the said Abbot and Convent shall not admit the parishioners of the Prior of Lancaster, without his licence, to sepulture or the ecclesiastical sacraments. But if any parishioner of the said prior shall desire sepulture at the monastery of Cockersand, on the dues being paid to the church of which he is a parishioner, the Prior on request shall not withhold his licence for the burial; but from henceforth he shall not permit offerings or personal tithes to be taken by them from his parishioners, who are their servants. If, however, it shall happen that the same Abbot and Convent of Cockersand shall again wittingly violate the said composition, then not only shall they be held to the penalties of the said violation, but also to those which now are relaxed by grace. Nor is it thought that they ought to be omitted from taking spiritualities from the parishioners of the Prior of Lancaster continually serving in the Abbey of Cockersand, but only from those who being servants in the granges, that is to say, in Carleton and Trefeld, Stainall, Precsall(?), and Ashton, within the appointed parishes of the said Prior, betake themselves, on Easter day and other days on which offerings are wont to be made, not to their parish churches, as is fitting, but to the monastery of Cokersand, and, contrary to justice, making their offerings and giving tithes there, they defraud their own churches of their right. If it happen that the said Abbot and Convent of Cockersand from henceforth have any granges or mansions in the said parishes of Lancaster and Poulton, those serving in the same shall act in the matter of personal tithes and oblations, as do those servants living in the aforesaid granges. And be it known that, to make an end of all litigation, the said Prior has granted to the said Abbot and Convent that he will not demand the payment of tithes of vegetables and beet growing in their close at Carleton. If, however, they shall plant corn or any timber whatsoever in the close, they shall faithfully pay tithes therefor, as they are bound. And the aforesaid ordinance is accepted by the parties, saving to the same Abbot and Convent their privileges as regards all things which are not touched in the said composition. In testimony of the accepting of which the parties have appended their seals, with that of the archdeacon, to this writing chirographed. Dated at Burton in Kendal, the fifth Kalends of December, in the year of our Lord 1256.

To all the faithful of Christ who shall see or hear this present writing, the Abbot and Convent of Cockersand and the Prior of Lancaster [send] greeting in the Lord. Ye all shall know that there is an amicable agreement between us on a certain controversy in question among us as to the tithe of the white rent of animals going from the boundary of the parish of Garstang into the forest of the Lord the King next adjacent, on such condition that if, for a year, or half a year, or the fourth part of a year, they shall feed there continually, the said Prior shall receive half of that tithe, namely, of the white [rent] without contradiction. And that this composition may remain lasting and unbroken both parties have strengthened the present writing by the protection of their seals.

Let all the faithful know that,—whereas the lord Ralph de Truno, Prior of Lancaster, as well by the title of the Lord Abbot of Sees, specially committed to him, as by the authority of his church of Poulton is empowered to settle the division [? of tithes], if there shall be any to be collected, and in the manner which shall be decreed to be most profitable to the said Abbey of Sees and the Church of Poulton, he demanded from the Abbot and Convent [of Cockersand] the parochial tithe of a certain pasture in the parish of the said Church of Poulton, lying between Colecross and the last ditch to the west towards Preesall, which is called Stakepool(?), which said pasture the Abbot and Convent of Cockersand obtained by collation of Sir John of Hackensall and Geoffrey his son,—on Thursday, on the vigil of the Circumcision of the Lord, in the year of grace one thousand two hundred and seventy one, it is thus covenanted between the said lord Prior and the Abbot and Convent that, on the part of the said lord Prior, the losses being remitted, the said Abbot and Convent of Cockersand shall pay annually eighteen pence at the feast of St. Michael in the name of tithe to the aforesaid church of Poulton for the said pasture for ever, so that, moreover, if the said Abbot and Convent shall wish at future times to cultivate the said pasture, the said church of Poulton shall fully receive the tithe of sheaves of the whole culture which they shall make in that pasture, together with the annual eighteen pence above-said; and that this composition may be held for ever unbroken by the parties, each party has hereupon appended their seal to this writing. *Composition between us and the Abbot and Convent of

To all who shall see or hear this present writing, brother W. de Reio, called Prior of Lancaster, greeting eternal in the Lord. Know all of you that we, by the common assent and consent of our monks, have granted to the Abbot and Convent of the Locus Benedictus of Stanlawe all the tithes of sheaves to be received within the bounds of Staining and of Hardhorn for ten marks of silver, to be annually paid for ever to us and our church at Lancaster by the aforesaid Abbot and Convent of Stanlawe at two terms of the year, namely, five marks at the feast of St. Martin in the winter and five marks at Whitsuntide, saving to us and our successors all the tithes of all the tenants of the aforesaid Abbot and Convent, and also of their secular servants, belonging to the altarage of our church of Poulton. But if it happen that the said Abbot and Convent of Stanlawe at any term hereafter shall be wanting in the payment, they shall pay each time, in the name of a penalty, the sum of half a mark to the fabric of the church of St. Peter of York. For firmly and fully observing these things, therefore, the aforesaid Abbot and Convent of Stanlawe have submitted themselves to the power and jurisdiction of the lord Archdeacon of Richmond, for the time being, that he may without judicial strife and order of law, compel them for not observing as well the principal debt as the penalty by his committed authority; and, moreover, they have renounced all aid of canon and civil law, privilege of clergy, foreign custom, and decided actions of fraud and in fact, and also exception of money not paid and not delivered to them, and especially the royal prohibition, and all privileges obtained or to be obtained, and all other exceptions which can be brought against the instrument or deed. In testimony whereof each party has set its seal to the writing of the other, made between them in the manner of a chirograph.

Composition between us and the Abbot of Furness concerning the tithes of the grange of Beaumont. [It occurs again elsewhere.]

Know all that whereas contention has been moved between brother John de le Ray, Prior of the church of the blessed Mary of Lancaster, on the one part, and brother William de Cockerham, Abbot of Furness and the Convent of the same place, on the other part, concerning the tithes of sheaves coming from all the lands which the said Abbot and Convent have in the parish of the blessed Mary of Lancaster at their grange of Beaumont, which the said John, Prior of Lancaster, demanded as belonging of common right to his church of Lancaster aforesaid, of the payment of which the aforesaid Abbot and Convent said that they and their successors were quit for two annual marks which the said Abbot and Convent and their predecessors have, for a long time past, paid annually to the predecessors of the said John, the Prior,—at length, by a friendly composition made between them in the presence of the Abbot of Stauney<sup>1</sup> and of the Abbots of Foucarmont<sup>2</sup> and Byland and of many others, the litigation is settled in this manner, namely: that the aforesaid Abbot of Furness and the Convent of the same place have granted and bound themselves and their successors by the tenor of these presents to the said John, Prior of Lancaster, and his successors, and to his church of Lancaster aforesaid for ever, to be held every year, in two marks of silver, to be paid on the feast of St. Michael “in monte Gargano,” at Lancaster, without further delay for all the tithes issuing out of the lands which they have at the grange of Beaumont, acquired before the general council, provided they shall cultivate those lands with their own hands or at their own costs; and whereas, it may happen that the said Abbot and Convent or their successors may let to farm those lands or some part of those lands to secular persons to cultivate, or otherwise may so place them out of their hands, the aforesaid John, Prior of Lancaster, and his successors shall, in the name of his church of Lancaster, receive all tithes of sheaves coming from the said lands so demised out of their hands, and shall possess those tithes peaceably and entirely for ever, together with the two marks aforesaid, without contradiction of the aforesaid Abbot and Convent and his successors whilst they are in the hands of others. And that this covenant may remain firm and intact in all things on both sides, the said John, Prior of Lancaster, for himself and his successors, by the consent of the Abbot and Convent of Sees, and the Abbot and Convent of Furness, for themselves and their successors, have alternately set their seals to this writing, made in the form of a chirograph, renouncing . . . . all exception, cavilling, royal prohibition, and all remedy at law, and all privilege obtained and to be obtained, and all things which in future can be brought against this deed, or which can benefit any part and be prejudicial to this deed. Procuracion for Staining.

In the name of God Amen. Know all, by the tenor of these presents that, whereas, a suit has been moved between us, the Prior and monks of the blessed Mary of Lancaster, holding the parish church of Poulton to our own uses, concerning the tithes of sheaves coming from the lands which the tenants of the Abbot and Convent now of Whalley, formerly of the Locus Benedictus of Stanlawc, did and do cultivate in the fields of Staining, Hardhorn, and Newton, being within the parish of the said church of Poulton, which [tithes] we have asserted to belong, of common right, to us the Prior and monks aforesaid, by reason of the aforesaid church of Poulton on the one part, and us, the Abbot and Convent, now of Whalley, formerly of the Locus Benedictus of Stanlawe, who claim that the said tithes legally belong to us by reason of a certain perpetual grant of the said Prior and monks, and of a confirmation of the Abbot and Convent of St. Martin of Sees, and also of a subsequent confirmation by the Archdeacon of Richmond, ordinary of the place, on the other part, first before the official of the lord Archdeacon of Richmond, and afterwards before the official of the Court of York, the said cause on the hearing of the aforesaid official of Richmond having been lawfully referred to the Court of York, and having been carried on for very many years with deliberations, aids, laborious fatigues, and great burden of expense,—at length, by the common advice of our friends, we, having recourse accordingly to Him who is the author and lover of peace, that danger to our souls may be averted, and backslidings avoided, also being desirous of obtaining the joyful benefit of peace and quietness concerning the said tithes of sheaves and all other [tithes] coming and to come from any lands of the said Abbot and Convent, now of Whalley, formerly of the Locus Benedictus of Stanlawe, within the boundaries of Staining, Hardhorn, and Newton, tithable to the said church of Poulton, as well now cultivated or to be brought back to cultivation hereafter,—also considering the damages and expenses had and made therein as is before said,—of certain knowledge, totally, specially and expressly, amicably and in good faith, without any scruple, deeply and lowly, purely and absolutely, we the Prior, in our name and as proctor for the Abbot and Convent of St. Martin of Sees, and we the monks of Lancaster, and we the Abbot and Convent now of Whalley, formerly of the Locus Benedictus of Stanlawe aforesaid, for us and our successors, all and singular, and for the right and benefit of the church of Poulton, and of our monasteries, by the tenor of these premises, subordinate, submit, and subject ourselves to the real ordinance, arbitration, definition, friendly composition, decree, statute, order, precept, and judgment of the lord official of the Court of York, with our express consent, spontaneously and uninfluenced by force, fraud, or fear, so that it is referred to the said lord official, weighing with himself our rights, and no less examining closely our wishes in and about all the aforesaid matters and all things touching them, without strife of law, with absolute submission, to really ordain, decide, define or amicably settle, decree, determine, judge, say, order, reserve, compel, and carry out all things as he shall deem more just, equitable, honest, or safe for making the peace and quiet of us and our successors unimpaired, lasting, firm, and stable; which real ordination, arbitration, definition, or amicable composition, decree, or statute, or order, judgment, or precept whatsoever, either against or in favour of us and our successors, in all and singular the abovesaid, we the Prior and Abbot personally by ourselves, and we the monks of the blessed Mary of Lancaster by Michael of Kendal, and we the Convent now of Whalley, formerly of the Locus Benedictus of Stanlawe, by brother Emfredus, our fellow monk, our proctors, having a special mandate to take an oath on our behalf, having sworn on the holy gospels, promise for us and our successors, severally and individually, to faithfully observe and fulfil for ever, renouncing specially and expressly by the same oath, all processes concerning the premises or any of the premises, also all exceptions, defences, cavillings, appeals, supplications now and in future, especially all restitution in entirety and law if there be any whereby renunciation of restitution entirely can be prevented, and also letters obtained or to be obtained in greater or less form, which are commonly known as "ea que de bonis," and also rescinding of contract, and payment beyond a half of the just price by reason of deception, also all other [verdicts ?] gained or to be gained in any ecclesiastical or secular court whatsoever, and all other remedy at law whereby any of us can in any way, by common or special right act contrary to these or any of these real ordinances, arbitrations, definitions, decrees, amicable compositions, statutes, orders or judgments, precepts, compulsions or executions of the said official on the aforesaid matters. In testimony of which things, we the Prior, for us and our monks, and we the Abbot, for us and our Convent, have caused our seals to be appended to these presents, and for greater security we have procured the seal of the officiality Court of York to be affixed. Dated at York, the seventh of the Ides of November, in the year of grace 1298.

Staining.*

In the name of God Amen. For a perpetual remembrance of the things under written,—amongst other good deeds which render a man friendly, dear and pleasing to God, we ought to think that specially acceptable which sows love in the hearts and produces a chain of affections. This I say is the peace and concord which drive away hatred, banish rancour and ill-will, prepare minds, soften hearts, keep the understanding unharmed, and unite the affections; these must be embraced by the faithful of Christ; these live and ought especially to flourish continuously amongst the religious servants of the Almighty God that they may enjoy in themselves the salutary fruit of love and peace for their own comforts, and may show their own sweetness as a worthy example for others. Wherefore the religious men the Prior and monks of Lancaster, holding the parish church of Poulton in Amounderness to their own uses, the Prior, to wit, as well in his own name as proctor for the Abbot and Convent of St. Martin of Sees, on the one part, and the Abbot and Convent of the Locus Benedictus of Stanlawe, now, in imitation, of the place called of Whalley, on the other part, ardently desiring the good things which come through peace and concord, and wishing to enjoy the sweetness of peace concerning the question moved between them respecting the tithes of sheaves coming from the lands which the tenants of the said Abbot and Convent of the Locus Benedictus of Stanlawe did and do cultivate in the fields of Hardhorn, Staining, and Newton, being within the parish of the said church of Poulton, and concerning certain our other matters, have undertaken to subordinate, submit, and subject themselves to the real ordinance, arbitration, definition, amicable composition, decree, statute order, precept, and judgment of the official of the Court of York, as in the letters of subordination, submission, and subjection thereon made and sealed with the seals of the parties and ours is more fully contained.

We, therefore, the official aforesaid, who desire to put an end to litigations, but especially to those among religious men whose quiet we affectionately seek that they may have more leisure for the divine offices, their subordination, submission, and subjection having been received favourably by us, and weighing with ourselves the rights of each party, and closely regarding the wishes and desires of the said parties; also the Prior of Lancaster and the Abbot of Stanlawe being present in person, and the monks of Lancaster by Michael of Kendal, and the Convent of Stanlawe or of Whalley by brother Emsfredus, one of their fellow monks, their proctors, as well the Prior and Abbot as the proctors aforesaid being before us to hear the real ordinance, arbitration, definition, amicable disposition, decree, statute, order, precept, or judgment, to the honour of our Saviour who gave and left his peace to his disciples, and of the glorious Virgin his mother, we as real ordainer, arbitrator, definer or friendly disposer, preceptor, and judge, by virtue and form of the subordinations, submissions, and subjections of the said parties, in all manner and right, following as we are best able the course of an ordainer, arbitrator, definer, judge, and friendly disposer, do ordain, arbitrate, define, amicably dispose, decree, determine, say, order and adjudge that the litigation or dispute moved between the said parties, and the processes thereon had being laid aside, and the damages and expenses had and made being mutually settled, the Abbot and Convent of Stanlawe, or Whalley, shall for ever receive all the greater tithes issuing from certain their lands as well now cultivated as hereafter to be brought back to culture, within the boundaries of Staining, Hardhorn, and Newton, being tithable lands to the abovesaid church of Poulton, whether the said lands within the said bounds be cultivated entirely by the said Abbot and Convent, or by their tenants, or a part of the said lands be cultivated by the Abbot and Convent, and the other part within the said bounds by their tenants, and concerning the lesser or personal tithes and oblations whatsoever of the tenants of the same Abbot and Convent within the said boundaries, or of their secular tenants within the same boundaries, the same Abbot and Convent shall receive nothing at all, but all such lesser and personal tithes and oblations whatsoever of the said tenants and secular servants shall in future entirely pertain to the said church of Poulton, and to the Prior and monks, or to the vicar of the church of Poulton in name. And that the said Abbot and Convent of the Locus Benedictus of Stanlawe, now of Whalley, for the aforesaid greater tithes to be received from the same as is abovesaid, shall pay to the said Prior and monks of Lancaster, or their proctor or attorney duly appointed or assigned to give a letter of acquittance of the receipt or payment made in the parish church of Poulton, eighteen marks every year for ever, at two terms of the year, namely, nine marks at the feast of St. Martin in the winter, and nine marks at Whitsuntide, which payment the same Abbot and Convent are bound faithfully to make at the place and terms appointed, without fraud and shadow of any contradiction whatsoever. And if perchance, by taxation now made or in future to be made, any payment or contribution, or anything else

by whatsoever name it may be known, be exacted from ecclesiastical goods, by whatsoever amount in future it may be demanded or imposed, or granted by any superior or by the clergy, the said Prior and monks shall declare and answer for eight marks only which newly accrue to them, and the said Abbot and Convent shall declare and answer for the rest by the name of greater tithes, and for those tithes which they receive within the said bounds as is abovesaid, so often as it shall be made, since the ten marks of the eighteen marks aforesaid are known to be taxed amongst the goods of the said Prior and monks by the taxation made in the church of Poulton aforesaid. Furthermore, if the said Abbot and Convent by reason of a sequestration made hereafter by the ordinary on the aforesaid greater tithes, through the fault of the Prior and monks of Lancaster, or of the Prior alone, shall suffer any damage or injury, and the said Prior, being sufficiently requested shall not procure a release of the sequestration within a month of such request, then he [the Prior] is bound to give competent satisfaction to the said Abbot and Convent for such injury and damage to be declared by oath on the part of the said Abbot and Convent so often as it shall happen, on the precept or judgment of the official of the Court of York for the time being. And if the said Abbot and Convent shall fail in the payment of the said eighteen marks they shall be compelled to the payment of the said money at the place and times appointed, or at any time, by the aforesaid official, so often as they shall neglect it, and none the less to the expenses and damages which the Prior and monks shall sustain, and which they shall declare by an oath on their part. Also we ordain, define, say, order, and adjudge that both parties shall be bound to give sufficient security, by an instrument chirographed sealed with their seals for obedience to our arbitration, if need be, and for observance of these premises and for keeping subsequent decrees; and that both parties shall ratify and expressly approve and confirm all the things abovesaid. Also that the Prior of Lancaster shall procure the confirmation, approbation, and ratification of the Abbot and Convent of Sees of this present ordinance in every word before the feast of Pentecost, and he is bound to hand it to the Abbot and Convent of Stanlawe or of Whalley before that feast. Also we ordain, arbitrate, say, and adjudge that if, which God forbid, the said Prior and monks or their successors, or the Abbot and Convent of the Locus Benedictus of Stanlawe, now Whalley, or their successors, shall by themselves or their people, tacitly or openly, directly or indirectly, or in any other way contravene these premises or any of them in future, or shall not observe them or fulfil them in any way, it shall be lawful for the official of York, for the time being, to compel and coerce, or cause to be compelled or coerced, the party contravening, not observing or not fulfilling the above, by sentence of suspension, excommunication, and interdict, and by sequestration of their spiritual goods, to an observance of all and singular these premises, provided it be declared to him by an oath of the party observing the aforesaid that the other party has contravened the premises or some of the premises, or has not kept or fulfilled them or some part of them ; which oath shall be taken by the party observing and obeying so often as the other party shall not obey, and shall be received in the presence of the party disobeying, or in their absence provided that on being once summoned they do not appear, no other inquiry being required. And nevertheless whatever party not obeying is bound to pay to the fabric of the church of St. Peter of York a mark of silver every time which they shall not have obeyed all the abovesaid articles which remain settled and are of lasting force. Reserving to ourselves and the official of the Court of York, for the time being, full power of interpreting, declaring, compelling, and carrying out at once and as often as it shall please and seem expedient to us. Also we say, ordain, order, and adjudge that both parties shall effectually procure, as quickly as possible on either side, that the venerable father the Archbishop of York, primate of England, and the Chapter of York shall ratify and confirm our ordination, arbitration, definition, or amicable composition, statutes, decrees, orders, precepts, or judgments. In testimony and faith of all which things, the seal of our office is appended to these presents. Dated at York the 6th of the Ides of November, in the year of grace 1298.

Ordinance of the Official of York as regards Staining.

Know all that whereas contention has been moved between brother John, Prior of the blessed Mary of Lancaster, and the monks of the same place holding the parish church of Poulton to their own uses, concerning the tithes of sheaves coming from the lands which the tenants of the Abbot and Convent, now of Whalley, formerly of the Locus Benedictus of Stanlawe, did and do cultivate in the fields of Staining, Hardhorn, and Newton, within the parish of the said church of Poulton, which the said Prior and monks in right of the aforesaid church of Poulton have asserted to belong of common right to them, on the one part, and between the aforesaid Abbot and Convent, now of Whalley, late of the Locus Benedictus of Stanlawe, who claimed that the tithes legally belong to them by virtue of a certain perpetual grant of the said Prior and monks and of a confirmation of the Abbot and Convent of St. Martin of Sees, and of a subsequent confirmation by the Archdeacon of

Richmond, Ordinary of the place, on the other part. At length, by the common advice of friends, by means of the ordinance of Master Robert de Pickering, then official of York, to whom the parties entirely and expressly submitted, after many altercations, the aforesaid contention was settled in this manner, to wit—that the said Abbot and Convent, now of Whalley, late of Stanlawe, shall for ever receive all the greater tithes coming from their lands whatsoever, as well now cultivated as hereafter to be brought back to culture, within the boundaries of Staining, Hardhorn, and Newton, being tithable of the said church of Poulton, whether the said lands be cultivated wholly by the said Abbot and Convent or by their tenants, or part of the said lands be cultivated by the said Abbot and Convent, and the other part of the lands within the said boundaries by the tenants. But in respect of the minor or personal tithes and oblations whatsoever of the tenants of the Abbot and Convent within the said boundaries, or of their secular servants within these boundaries, the Abbot and Convent shall receive nothing at all, but all minor and personal tithes and oblations of this kind whatsoever of the said tenants and secular servants in future belong entirely to the said church of Poulton, to the Prior and monks, or to the vicar of the church of Poulton on behalf of the same. And that the said Abbot and Convent of Whalley, late of Stanlawe, for the aforesaid greater tithes to be received by them, as is abovesaid, shall pay every year for ever to the said Prior and monks of Lancaster or their attorney bearing a letter of acquittance, in the parish church of Poulton, eighteen marks, at the two terms of the year—namely, nine marks at the feast of St. Martin in the winter, and nine marks at Pentecost—which payment the Abbot and Convent are bound to make at the place and times appointed, faithfully and without fraud and shadow of contradiction of any kind, under a penalty of one mark, to be paid to the fabric of the church of St. Peter of York every time they shall cease in their payment. And if, perchance, by taxation now made or in future to be made, any payment or contribution or anything else under any name whatsoever be exacted from ecclesiastical goods, by whatsoever amount in future it may be demanded, or imposed, or conceded, by any superior or the clergy, the aforesaid Prior and monks shall duly acknowledge and answer for eight marks only which newly accrue to them and the said Abbot and Convent for the rest, under the name of greater tithes, and for those tithes which they receive within the boundaries aforesaid, as is above expressed, so often as it shall happen to be made ; as the ten marks out of the eighteen marks aforesaid are known to be taxed as part of the goods of the Prior and monks by a taxation already made in the church of Poulton aforesaid. Furthermore, if the said Abbot and Convent by reason of any sequestration, made by the ordinary, of the said greater tithes through the fault of the Prior and monks of Lancaster, or of the Prior alone, shall suffer any damage or injury, and the said Prior on sufficient request shall not procure the release of the sequestration within a month of such request, then he is bound to make competent satisfaction to the said Abbot and Convent for the injury and damage, to be declared on oath on the part of the said Prior and Convent, so often as it shall happen, on the order or judgment of the official of York for the time being ; and if the said Abbot and Convent shall be lacking in their payment of the said eighteen marks at the place and times appointed, or at any term thereof, for the payment of the said money, they shall be compelled by the aforesaid official, so often as they shall happen to fail, to pay the expenses and damage which the Prior and monks shall sustain thereby, and which they shall declare by an oath on their part. And that this agreement may remain firm and unbroken in all things, on either side, the said Prior and monks of Lancaster for them and their successors, with the consent of the Abbot and Convent, now of Whalley, late of Stanlaw, for themselves and their successors, have to this writing, made in the form of a chirograph, alternately appended their seals. Renouncing by oaths taken on both sides all suits on the premises or any of the premises, also all exceptions, defences, cavillings, appeals, supplications, made or to be made specially, all entire restitution, and any law, if there be any whereby entire restitution cannot be renounced, and also letters obtained or to be obtained in the major or minor form which are commonly known as "eaque de bonis," and also recision of contract, and payment beyond half of the just price by reason of deception, also all other [decisions] gained or to be gained in any court, ecclesiastical or secular, and all other remedy at law whereby perchance any of the aforesaid parties can contravene these or any of these things which are mentioned above, by common right or in any other especial manner. Dated at Lancaster the eighth Kalends of March, in the year of our Lord 1298.

[TRANSLATION.]

Boniface, bishop, servant of the servants of God, for a perpetual memorial of the matter in question,—although we, who have been appointed, through the disposition of divine mercy, to the chair of pastoral pre-eminence, are weighed down by the many and arduous affairs which, like a torrent, flow into the broad lap of the Roman Court, are exercised by innumerable cares, and distracted by many deliberations, nevertheless we give heed to fervent desires, and find leisure to bestow anxious and careful attention on all disquietudes, so that, for the glory of the divine name, the advancement of the Catholic faith and the perfecting the souls of the faithful, evils being rooted out, and sources of litigation among persons whom the religious order includes being entirely removed, the tranquility of peace may flourish, the zeal of charity burn brightly, the unity of concord grow stronger, the gaining of souls be persevered in. We know and gather from evidence that only in a time of peace is the author of peace duly worshipped, nor are we ignorant that dissensions and scandals give occasion for evil actions, excite ill will and hatred, and furnish boldness for unlawful deeds. Of late, indeed, between prelates and rectors or priests, and the clerks of parish churches in divers parts of the world on the one side, and the friars of the orders of preachers and minors on the other, discord being a jealous rival of peace, a grave and perilous dissension existed, excited by preachings of the faithful being made to the people, confessions being heard, and penances enjoined on them and the bodies of those being buried who are known to have chosen a sepulture in the churches or places of these friars. Now we, piously considering this matter as a father, and bringing the troubles of the children to the examination of deep thought, and turning over carefully in our mind how full of dangers this dissension is, how burdensome in expense, and how hateful it appears in the sight of divine majesty, and, therefore, being desirous, with the zeal of paternal solicitude, to absolutely root it out and entirely remove it, so that, with the help of God, it may at no future time be renewed, and longing ardently that a matter of this nature, which is close to our heart, may by the efforts of apostolic influence be effectively and speedily carried out, having carefully deliberated with our brethren on this business, for the honour of God, the upraising of faith, the concord of the said parties, and the increase of health to the souls of the faithful, by the advice of our brethren and with apostolic authority, have decreed and ordained that the friars in their own churches and common places may freely preach to the clergy and people and propound the word of God, excepting only at that hour in which the prelates of those places may desire to preach or to have preaching solemnly made before them, at which time they shall not preach unless by the will and special licence of those prelates. In their general studies where sermons to the clergy are wont to be made, on those days on which it is a solemn custom to preach, at funerals and on the special or peculiar feasts of these friars, they can and may preach freely except forsooth on any day on which it is customary for the word of God to be propounded to the clergy in the said places, or the superior prelate should convoke generally the clergy before him, or through any urgent reason or cause he should consider the clergy must assemble. But in parish churches the friars dare and ought by no means to preach or propound the word of God, unless perchance the friars are invited or called upon by the parish priests, or by their good will and assent, or licence be sought and obtained, or the bishop or superior prelate shall lay command on these friars to preach. We decree and ordain, by the authority aforesaid, that in each state or diocese in which their places are known to be, or in the states and dioceses near to their places but wherein they have not places of this kind, the master priors, provincials of the friars' preachers and their vicars, and the general minister and provincial ministers and guardians (custodes) of the order of friars' minors aforesaid, shall betake themselves to the presence of the prelates of the said places, either by themselves or by their brethren whom they shall deem fitted for that purpose, humbly to request that the friars who shall be chosen for that purpose may in their states and dioceses freely hear the confessions of those of their people who desire to make confession, and impose salutary penances on those so confessing as in God it shall seem expedient, and give them the benefit of absolution, by the licence, grace, and good will of these [prelates]; and then the aforesaid master, priors provincials, and minister and provincial ministers of the said orders, shall take care to elect sufficient and fit persons, of approved life, discreet, modest, and skilled in the duty of so wholesome a mystery and office; which persons so elected they shall present or cause to be presented to the prelates, that by their licence, grace, and good will the persons so elected may, in their states and dioceses, hear the confessions of those wishing to confess, impose salutary penances, and grant the benefit of absolution as is above said. Through the provinces, outside the states and dioceses, in and throughout which they shall have been deputed to act, we are by no means unwilling they should be deputed for hearing confessions. The number of persons to be appointed to exercise this office ought to be in proportion as the number of clergy and people, and the multitude or paucity of them, demands. And if the prelates shall grant the licence of hearing confessions so requested, the aforesaid master, minister, and others shall receive it with thankfulness, and the persons elected shall perform the duty committed to them. But if by chance the said prelates shall be unwilling to have some one from among the friars presented to them for this duty, or should not think that he ought to be admitted, his place being vacant, another may and is to be elected for similar presentation to the prelates. And if these prelates should refuse to grant licence to the friars elected for hearing confessions as is above said, we of our apostolic power graciously grant to them that they may hear freely and without restraint the confessions of those willing to confess to them, and may impose penances on these, and grant to them the benefit of absolution. But by a concession of this sort we by no means intend to give a greater power to the persons or friars deputed for this present purpose than is by law conceded to curates or parish priests, unless perchance the prelates of the churches shall consider that a more extensive grace may be specially made to them in this matter. Also to this our decree and ordinance, we add that the friars of the said orders may have free sepulture in their appointed churches and places any where soever, as follows, namely, that they may receive all for that purpose who should elect to be buried in their places and churches. But that the parish churches and their curates or rectors who have to administer the sacraments (for which it is known they—the friars—are not lawfully qualified), to preach or propound the word of God, and to hear the confessions of the faithful, may not be defrauded of their dues and necessary benefices, for the workman is worthy of his hire, we by the same authority decree and ordain that the friars of the orders of preachers are bound to give entirely to the parish priests and rectors or curates of churches the fourth part, which we by apostolic authority assess and define, of all obventions both from funerals and bequests of whatsoever kind, whether made definitely or indefinitely for any fixed or settled purpose, of which even the fourth or canonical portion is not accustomed or ought not legally to be given or demanded, also of gifts or donations made in what way soever, either at death or in the agony of death, or in the sickness of which the donor shall die, either directly or indirectly to the friars themselves or to others on their behalf, who (the friars) are to cause and take care that bequests of this kind are not made for the use and benefit of the friars to any from whom a fourth part shall not be due, or that gifts are not bestowed on them in a similar manner, whether what shall be given to the friars be at death or by sick men, or they procure anything to be given or granted in the health of the donors, in the avoiding of which by the friars we intend to trust to their consciences. And if, which God forbid, it shall happen that anything be done by craft or fraud in this matter by the friars, beyond what we will they be bound to the said priests, rectors, and curates in discretion is requisite in the weighing of an extreme judgment by them. But beyond this portion, the parish priests, rectors, curates, and prelates aforesaid may demand nothing, nor are the said friars compelled to pay more, nor can they be coerced to do so by any one to any amount. And we, that all things may proceed equitably and peaceably, by divine favour, revoke, annul, make void and ineffectual, and declare null, void, and ineffectual, and in short to be of no force, all privileges, indulgences, favours, granted by word or in writing in whatsoever form or expression or conception of words, by us or our predecessors the Roman pontiffs, to any of the said orders, also customs, conventions and pacts in so far as they are contrary to those or any of these premises. And we entreat and diligently exhort all the prelates of the church of whatsoever degree, state, or dignity they may be, and parish priests, curates, or rectors aforesaid, by the tenor of these presents, enjoining them strictly that by their reverence for the divine and apostolic see, they, regarding the said orders and their professors recommended by the friars with benevolent affection, may study to show themselves not morose, severe, harsh or rough, but rather favourable, propitious, kind, and with a pious munificence, liberal, so that they shall not fail to receive with ready kindness, and devoutly adore them as strong fellow-workers in the duty of preaching and expounding the word of God and in all the other offices abovesaid, and as sharers of their labours, that thereby their reward of eternal blessedness may be augmented, and a happy increase in the salvation of souls may be procured. Nor may we conceal from them that if they shall happen to act otherwise in this matter, the affection of the apostolic see, which follows with special favour orders and their professors, and cherishes them in the bowels of love, will be deservedly turned from them, nor could such things be suffered with equanimity, but a suitable remedy will be found therefor; and, moreover, the anger of the celestial prince, who will requite in proportion to his merits him whose careful attention shall gain the affection of these friars, will by no means pass by them. To nothing, therefore, of our statute, ordinance, assessment, concession, limitation, revocation, etc. Dated at the Lateran, the 12th Kalens of March, the sixth year of our Pontificate.

Boniface, bishop, servant of the servants of God, to his beloved sons the Cistercian Abbot and his co-Abbots, and all the convents of the Cistercian order greeting and the apostolic benediction. In the firmament of the Church your order shining brightly illumines the entire fold of the Lord's flock, and marks out a right course to those running the race which is ended happily by the reward of salvation. We, on this account, and on account of the affection of the great devotion you have to us and the apostolic see, look on your order and you, and others professors of the same order, with deep affection, and are urged by a sincere love to promote your and their good in any way we honestly can. promotor of the said order, which as a professed member he advocates, has reverently made known to us your necessities and those of the said order, and for them has implored the aid of our provision ;—we by the authority of these presents grant you this indulgence that, of your lands, cultivated or uncultivated, belonging to your order, which you have granted or shall grant hereafter to others to be cultivated, from which, nevertheless, no one receives tithes or first fruits, no one shall presume to demand or extort from you or the cultivators of these lands, or from any one else soever, tithes or first fruits. Privileges of the Roman Pontiffs.

Innocent, bishop, servant of the servants of God, to his beloved sons the Abbot and Convent of St. Martin of Sees, of the order of St. Benedict, greeting and the apostolic benediction. Inclining to the prayers of your devotedness we, by the authority of these presents, grant you this indulgence that, through the reservations and inhibitions which shall happen to be made by pretext of letters obtained or to be obtained hereafter from the apostolic see concerning provisions of any kind whatsoever, by which full right may not be acquired by any one, no obstacle can be interposed whereby you may not collate the churches and other ecclesiastical benefices belonging to your collation when they shall become vacant, and freely present fit persons to the churches which belong to your presentation, unless these letters to be obtained shall make full, express, and exact mention of this indulgence and of the whole tenor of it. To no man, therefore, is it lawful to infringe this charter of our concession, or by any rash attempt to go against it. If any one shall presume to attempt it he shall know that he will incur the displeasure of Almighty God and of the blessed Peter and Paul his apostles. Dated at Anagni the 13th Kalends of August, in the 12th year of our Pontificate.

Alexander, bishop, servant of the servants of God, to all the faithful of Christ who shall inspect these present letters greeting and the apostolic benediction. He granting, of whose gift it cometh that his faithful people do unto him true and laudable service, of the abundance of his love which exceeds the merits of his suppliants, and which bestows much greater gifts on those serving him well than they can deserve; nevertheless, wishing to render the people acceptable to the Lord we invite the faithful of Christ to be pleasing to him, as it were, by certain attractive gifts, indulgences and remissions to wit, to become more worthy of divine grace. Desiring therefore that the church of the Monastery of Lancaster, of the order of St. Benedict, of the diocese of York, may be filled with fitting honours, we, confident in the mercy of God and the authority of the blessed Peter and Paul his apostles, mercifully remit to all true penitents and the confessed who shall approach the church for the sake of devotion, annually on the feasts of the blessed Virgin Mary, to whose honour, as it is asserted, the church is dedicated, and on the anniversary of the dedication of the said church, a hundred days of the penances enjoined on them. Dated at Anagni the nones of March, in the sixth year of our Pontificate.

Alexander, bishop, servant of the servants of God, to his beloved son William, Prior of the Monastery of Lancaster, of the order of St. Benedict, in the diocese of York, greeting and the apostolic benediction. Whereas, on account of the hearing of causes which are at times committed to you by the apostolic see, you assert that not only is the quiet of your mind in no small way disturbed, but the profits of your monastery very much diminished;—we, moved by the fervour of your prayers, grant you this indulgence, by the authority of these presents, that you be not compelled unwillingly to hear causes through apostolic letters which do not make full and express mention of this indulgence. To no one therefore is it lawful to infringe this charter of our concession, or by any rash deed to go against it. If any one shall presume to attempt this, he shall know that he will incur the displeasure of Almighty God and of the blessed Peter and Paul his apostles ; these presents not to be valid after three years. Dated at the Lateran, the 6th Kalends of April, in the second year of our Pontificate.

Nicholas, bishop, servant of the servants of God, to all the faithful of Christ who shall inspect these present letters, greeting and apostolic benediction. He granting, of whose gift it cometh that his faithful people do unto him true and laudable service, of the abundance of his love which exceeds the merits of his suppliants, and which bestows much greater gifts on those serving him well than they can deserve, desiring to render the people so acceptable to the Lord, we invite the faithful of Christ to be pleasing to him, as it were, by certain attractive gifts, such as indulgencies and remissions, that therefrom they may be made more fitted for divine grace. Therefore desiring that the parish church of Lancaster, in the diocese of York, may be visited with fitting honours, to true penitents and those confessed, who shall annually devoutly visit that church on the feasts of the Nativity, Annunciation, Purification, and Assumption of the blessed Virgin Mary, by whose name this church is adorned, and on the feast of St. Nicholas the Confessor, and during eight days immediately following these feasts, also on the anniversary of the dedication of this church, confiding in the mercy of Almighty God and the authority of the blessed Peter and Paul his apostles, we mercifully remit one year and forty days of the penances imposed on them. Dated at Rome at St. Mary's the Greater, the tenth Kalends of March, in the fourth year of our Pontificate.

Innocent, bishop, servant of the servants of God, to his very dear son, Gilbert, Abbot of the Monastery of St. Martin of Sees, and to his successors duly to be promoted hereafter. None of those things which were instituted by the holy fathers for the perpetual benefit of churches or religious houses ought to be unrighteously overthrown by any change of time, but rather to be imitated ; and as the greater reverence is shewn to the apostolic see by all the churches so much the more does it behove us to be solicitous in our care of these churches, and we ought to look diligently after their quiet. For it is right and fitting that we, who have been called to the rule of these churches, should both guard them from the evil doings of wicked men, and take care to cherish them in the protection of the holy Roman church. Therefore, O very dear son in the Lord, Gilbert the Abbot, we mercifully give assent to thy reasonable requests, and we, as head of the apostolic see through divine favour, fortify the monastery of St. Martin with this privilege by decreeing that whatsoever possessions and goods this monastery at this present justly and canonically possesses, or in future by the grant of pontiffs, the bounty of kings, the liberality of princes, the offerings of the faithful, or by other just means, the Lord favouring it, can obtain, shall remain firm and unimpaired to you and your successors for ever. Also whatsoever things in lands, cultivated or uncultivated, woods, meadows, feedings, churches, waters and watercourses, or other possessions conferred on you out of pious devotion by the illustrious man Hugh Montgomery and his brothers Roger and Robert the Earls, or other faithful of God in England, and confirmed by the writings of illustrious kings of England, we confirm to your monastery by the present writing. Therefore, we decree that it is not lawful for any man to rashly trouble the aforesaid monastery or to take away their possessions or retain those taken away, to diminish them or to harass them by any vexations whatsoever, but all shall be kept entire to serve all the purposes for the government and support of which they were granted. If, therefore, in future any ecclesiastical or secular person, knowing this charter of our will, shall attempt to contravene it rashly, if being warned a second or third time he shall not correct his fault by fitting amendment, he shall be deprived of the dignity of power and honour, and shall acknowledge himself to be guilty, by divine judgment, of the iniquity he has committed, and shall become an alien to the most sacred body and blood of God and our Lord Jesus Christ. But to all upholding the rights of the said place, let there be the peace of our Lord Jesus Christ henceforth, and here they shall receive the fruit of a good action and find with a strict judge the reward of everlasting peace, Amen. Dated at the Lateran by the hand of Aimericus, Cardinal Deacon and Chancellor of the holy Roman church, the 5th nones of May, the second indiction, the year of the incarnation of our Lord, 1133, and in the tenth year of the pontificate of Innocent the second.

And the aforesaid Prior and monks firmly promised to the said H. that they will never bring any suit against him concerning the aforesaid matter so long as he shall faithfully perform the said composition. Confirmation of the composition aforesaid.

To all the faithful of Christ to whom this present writing shall come, G., by divine compassion, bishop of Coventry, greeting in the Lord. Know all of you that the cause which depended between the Prior and monks of Lancaster and H., the clerk of Childwall, concerning the church of Childwall, delegated by the supreme pontiff to the Abbots of Chester and of Stanlawe and to the Prior of Birkenhead, the action being brought and the allegations thereon being heard, has been settled by a composition being made between them in this form, to wit,—that the same H., the clerk, shall pay annually, so long as he shall hold that church, to the aforesaid Prior and monks of Lancaster twenty shilings in the name of a pension of the church of Childwall,—to wit, a moiety at Whitsuntide and a moiety at the feast of St. Martin. And this composition has been strengthened by an oath, corporally taken by each party before the said judges, faithfully to observe it without prejudice of any persons. And that this composition may remain unimpaired we further confirm it by the apposition of our seal. These being witnesses—Master W. de Muscamp, Archdeacon of Derby; William Duredt(?); Master W., of Manchester; N., the chamberlain; A., clerk of Derby; R., clerk of Childwall.

To all who shall inspect the present letters Master Ralph de Maceris, Richard parson of Hugate, John de Hesel clerk, greeting in the Lord. Know all of you that whereas contention is depending between the venerable men John Romanus, Archdeacon of Richmond, and the Abbot and Convent of Sees, before the Priors of Kirkham and of Bridlington, the Judges delegated by the lord the pope, concerning certain matters touching the Priory of Lancaster,—at length the said parties have compromised through us, as ordainers of the aforesaid matters; and we, having had diligent consultation and taken the advice of prudent men, have pronounced this judgment—namely, that the right of patronage with the pension of three marks, and all right which the Abbot and Convent of Sees had in the church of Bolton in Lonsdale, in the Archdeaconry of Richmond, is yielded up for ever, and that the moiety of the church of Poulton with its appurtenances which Alexander de Stanford possesses, when it shall be vacant, is ceded to the Priory of Lancaster to his own uses, provided that in the said church the vicarage may be taxed by good men chosen by each party from the goods of the same church to the value of 20 marks ; to which [vicarage] the Abbot and Convent of Sees shall present their own clerk for ever, who shall find hospitality for the Archdeacon, and shall support all other due and customary burdens. We have also ordained that the said Archdeacon shall confirm the church of Lancaster with its appurtenances to be held by the said Priory for ever as they formerly held it, and that neither he nor his successors shall compel those appointed to the vicarage in the same unless it shall please them, saving nevertheless to the said Archdeacon and his successors in all things, their archidiaconal right in the same ; and [we have ordained] that each party shall provide for the perpetual security of the other so far as possible, and shall procure this faithfully and efficiently. In testimony whereof we have set our seals to this present writing. Dated at York the 3rd Nones of March in the year of grace 1246.

chapel of Bispham, which they at present possess, and also the appropriation of the other moiety of the church of Poulton and of the chapel of Bispham when that vicarage shall happen to be vacant, and the pension of half a mark of silver from the church of Heysham, which the venerable and discreet man Master John Romanus, Archdeacon of Richmond, made to the Abbot and Convent as we have seen to be contained in the letters of the said archdeacon, holding them good and valid to the same by the diocesan authority; and the church of Bolton, the advowson of which the said Abbot and Convent of St. Martin of Sees freely conferred on the aforesaid archdeacon and his successors Archdeacons of Richmond after the death of John de Morton, clerk, who now holds it, or the cession of it to the said archdeaconry we give over, and so given over we confirm by pontifical authority to the oft mentioned Master John Romanus, Archdeacon of Richmond, and his successors, to be held in perpetuity; who shall receive from the said rector, so long as he shall live or until he shall surrender it, three marks annually from the said church in the name of a pension; that church to be held to their own use after his death. Know ye that we have inspected the letters of our very dear brother and canon Master Henry de Newark, Archdeacon of Richmond, in these words:—To all the sons of the holy mother church who shall see or hear these letters Henry de Newark, Archdeacon of Richmond, greeting in Him who is the true salvation. Since all prelates are bound to inculcate true religion, and when inculcated to cherish and increase it, We, regarding the humility and honesty of the Abbot and Convent of St. Martin of Sees, and of the Prior and monks of Lancaster, and the state of the said priory, and as it is our duty to guard and strengthen by perpetual defences the benefits which are known to have been conferred by the faithful on sacred and religious places in perpetual alms for the safety of their souls in our archdeaconry, We, having God before our eyes, and with a desire of divine piety, confirm to the said Abbot and Convent, Prior and monks of Lancaster, the church of the blessed Mary of Lancaster, with all the lands, tithes, possessions, and chapels belonging to the said church, namely, with the chapel of Gersingham, Caton, and Overton, and especially the chapel of Stalmine, and the moiety of the church of Poulton and of the chapel of Bispham, which they at present possess. We will also and grant that the said Abbot and Convent, Prior and monks of Lancaster, shall hold and for ever possess the other moiety of the church of Poulton, and of the chapel of Bispham when it shall happen to become vacant, appropriated by us to their uses, provided that when both parts shall accrue to them a vicar may be appointed there who in the estimation of good men shall receive twenty marks in the name of the vicarage, and shall sustain all due and customary burdens belonging to the said church and chapel; and, through the aforesaid Abbot and Convent, the Archdeacon of Richmond, for the time being, shall present him to the said vicarage, and he shall receive institution and the cure of souls from the same. Besides we will and grant that they may hold and possess their church of Lancaster, with the appurtenances aforesaid, in full right, saving the archidiaconal right and the dignity of the church of York in all things. We confirm to them the pension of half a mark of silver which they receive in the church of Hecyham of which they are patrons. And that all these aforesaid matters may remain firm and unshaken for ever we have thought fit to set our seal to the present writing. Dated at York the 15th Kalends of December, in the year of our Lord 1286.

We, therefore, accepting and approving the deed of the said Archdeacon in all the premises so far as it pertains to us, confirm it, saving always the right and dignity of our church of York. In testimony whereof we have strengthened this present writing by the impression of our seal. Dated in our chapter at York the 1des of February, the year of our Lord abovesaid.

Confirmation that we have not a vicarage in the Church of Lancaster.

H. de Newark, Archdeacon of Richmond, to the religious men the Prior and Convent of Lancaster, greeting in Him who is the true Salvation of all. Amongst the other works of charity by which your devotion to God and man is manifoldly exhibited, we have perceived the virtue of hospitality take root and flourish so greatly amongst you that, owing to the unfruitfulness of your land, and people flocking to you on every side, you have generously bestowed on them necessities of life beyond your resources, whereby you have not unjustly accounted us your debtors. For the quiet of your minds that you may the more freely persevere in your devotion to study, and for the increase of your temporal affairs that you may the more fully extend the hospitality, we pursue you with all the favour we can. Hence it is, most beloved, that although of yore the venerable fathers formerly Archbishops of York, and the chapter of the same place, and also the Archdeacons of Richmond of happy memory, our predecessors, by their charters granted to you and your monastery, which we have subjected to inspection, may seem in the generality of certain words to have implicitly granted, and equally confirmed to you, that you may entirely hold your church of the blessed Mary of Lancaster, as they seemed to have understood it, so that no vicarage or vicar may be ordained in it from without. We, nevertheless, expressly stating their and our will, specially grant to you by these presents that since you administer by yourselves and fit chaplains to that church and its parish continually day and night, and labour perpetually in the cure of souls, you may not be compelled by any one, in any way, to make or ordain a vicarage or vicar in that church, as hitherto none has existed in it, contrary to your will. And that this our grant may have perpetual strength, we have granted that these our letters may be fortified with the protection of our seal. Dated at York the 18th Kalends of May, in the year of our Lord 1282.

As all prelates are bound to inculcate true religion, and when inculcated to cherish and increase it, We, observing the humility and honesty of the Abbot and Convent of St. Martin of Sees, of the Prior and monks of Lancaster, and the state of that priory, and as it is our duty to keep and strengthen with perpetual defences the benefits which are known to have been conferred by the faithful on holy places and religious persons for the safety of their souls in perpetual alms in our Archdeaconry,—We, having God before our eyes, with a desire of divine piety, confirm to them the said Abbot and Convent, and Prior and monks of Lancaster, the church of the blessed Mary of Lancaster, with all the lands and tithes, possessions, and chapels, belonging to the said church, namely, the chapel of Gressingham, Caton, and Overton, and especially the chapel of Stalmine, and a moiety of the church of Poulton and the chapel of Bispham, which they at present possess. he shall otherwise answer to them for the temporalities if need be. Further we will and grant that they may hold and possess their church of Lancaster, with the appurtenances aforesaid, as they formerly held it, without any coercion by us or our successors Archdeacons of Richmond for the future of instituting a vicar there unless it shall please them; and we confirm to them the pension of half a mark of silver which they receive in the church of Heysham, of which they are patrons. To the lord the reverend father in Christ, the most beloved, the venerable lord R., Bishop of Chester, Chancellor of the King of England, A[dam] of Yealand, sheriff of Lancaster,<sup>1</sup> greeting, and [commends] himself. Your excellency shall know that on a mandate of our lord the King concerning the priory of Lancaster, in full county, by lawful men of the county, I have made inquisition by these, namely, Sir Roger Gernet, Geoffrey Balistarius, Walter of Parles, A. of Capernwray, Adam of Bury, Walter of Winwick, Adam of Hutton, Roger of Tunstall, Gilbert of Kellet, Richard of Keldelith, William of Tunstall, Robert de Asserto, (?) Nicholas tinctor (the dyer), William of Stalmine, William of Preesall, Ranulf the clerk, Alan of Singleton, William of Tatham, and others, Who say that the house of the Priory of Lancaster is a cell of the monastery of Sees, and that the Abbot of Sees can at his will appoint and remove the Prior when he shall wish, by the assent of the lord the King, and that, on the death of the Prior, that priory, in the times of King Henry, grandfather of the King, of the uncle of King Henry, and of John, father of King Henry, was wont to be taken into their hands and kept, nor at any time does it seem that the Archbishop of York or the Archdeacon of Richmond laid hands on that house, but only the bailiffs of the lord the King until another prior at the will of the same Abbot of Sees may be instituted to that house. Wherefore it is that I

[TRANSLATION.]

To all the sons of the holy mother church who shall see or hear this writing, Thomas and William and Benedict of Gressingham greeting in the Lord. Whereas we sought that our cemetery of Gressingham might be blessed by the venerable father the lord J., Bishop of Man and the Isles, suffragan of the lord Archbishop of York, we have bound ourselves by this present writing that never will we claim the right of presenting nor as far as it belongs to lay persons the right of collating, and that we will preserve our mother church of Lancaster harmless in and through all things, so that both for living and dead we shall in all things be observant and answerable as we were wont to be before the blessing of the cemetery. For the greater security of this matter we have fortified this present writing for us and our heirs with our seals. And be it known that we, touching the holy [Gospels], have sworn firmly to observe these things without fraud. These being witnesses—Thomas of Kirkby, official of Richmond ; W., of Tatham, dean of Lancaster ; the Lord N., prior of Hornby ; Robert of Claughton, Richard, vicar of Tunstall ; G., clerk of Whittington, and others.

Sciant omnes tam presentes quam futuri quod nos scilicet Alicia, Elena, et Alicia, filie Rogeri filii Ricardi dedimus concessimus et hac presenti carta nostra confirmavimus Thome de Coupmanwar et heredibus suis vel cuicunque assignare voluerit, septem acras terre in territorio de Gersingham quas nos de ecclesia beate Marie de Lancastre et monachis ibidem Deo servientibus quondam tenuimus. Tenendas et habendas sibi et heredibus suis vel assignatis liberas et quietas imperpetuum cum omnibus aysiamentis dicte ville, faciendo idem servitium dicte ecclesie et monachis quod eisdem facere consuevimus. Scilicet solvendo duodecim denarios ad Pascha et xij<sup>d</sup> ad festum Sancti Michaelis. Nos vero totum jus coram Domino Garnero, Priore Lancastr[ic] et monachis quod in dictis acris terre habuimus cum pertinenciis vel habere poterimus dicto Thome et heredibus suis vel assignatis suis de nobis et heredibus nostris omnino quietum clamavimus. Ita quod nos vel heredes nostri nunquam jus vel clameum in predictis acris terre exigere poterimus. Pro hac vero donacione, concessione et quieti clamacione dedit nobis predictus Thomas in viginti necessitate nostra duodecim solidos pre manibus. In cujus rei testimonium sigilla nostra presenti carte dignum duximus apponere. Know all as well present as to come that we, to wit, Alice, Ellen, and Alicia, daughters of Roger fitz Richard, have given, granted, and by this our present charter confirmed, to Thomas of Capernwray and his heirs, or any one he shall wish to assign, seven acres of land in the territory of Gressingham, which we formerly held of the church of the Blessed Mary of Lancaster and the monks there serving God. To have and to hold to him and his heirs or assigns free and quit for ever, with all the easements of the said vill, doing the same service to the said church and monks that we were wont to do to them, to wit, paying twelve pence at Easter and twelve pence at the feast of St. Michael. And we, in the presence of the Lord Garner, Prior of Lancaster, and his monks, have quit-claimed to the said Thomas, his heirs or assigns, from us and our heirs entirely, all right which we had or can have in the said [seven] acres of land with the appurtenances, so that neither we nor our heirs can demand any right or claim in the aforesaid acres of land. And for this donation, grant, and quit-claim, the aforesaid Thomas has given us in our urgent necessity twelve shillings in hand. In testimony whereof we have thought fit to append our seals to this present charter. These being witnesses—the Lord Garner, at that time Prior of Lancaster; Gerard and Roger, chaplains of Lancaster; Laurence of Lancaster; Thomas, son of Roger Dune; Adam of Kellet, Philip the clerk, and others.

Artlebek.

To all who shall see or hear this writing John of Hutton greeting in the Lord everlasting. Know ye that I have given, granted, and by my present writing confirmed, to John, son of Roger Gernet of Caton, and the Prior of Lancaster and his successors, the water course of Artlebeck through the midst of my whole land lying next the said water, from the house which Alice of Hutton formerly held towards the house of Gilbert "serviens" so that the said water can be conveniently and easily brought to the mills of John and the Prior. And if it happen that the said course be deficient or injured by a too great inundation of rain it shall be well lawful for them, or their heirs and successors, to mend the said course, or to make elsewhere and where and whenever it shall please them a new course in the aforesaid land, to take the land there and to inclose the water course with entrenchments if it shall seem expedient to them. And for this grant, and for the confirmation of this charter, the aforesaid John and his heirs, the Prior and his successors, are bound to pay me and my heirs annually six pence of silver at the feast of St. Michael for every secular service due to me or my heirs. And I, John de Hutton, and my heirs, are held to warrant and defend the above-written covenant to the said John and the Prior, and their heirs and successors, against all mortals for ever. In testimony whereof I have set my seal to the present writing.
